AFFAIRS IN VIRGINIA .- Late eveats in Vi ginia caunot fail to have a very disheartenin effect upon the Southern Confederacy.

WEDNESDAY, JULY 17, 1861.

Recently all eyes were fixed upon the oppose ing armics of l'atterson and Johnson acar Martinsburgh. The secessionists had the atmost confidence in Johnson as a General,' and the Union men have never bad much in l'atterson. l'atterson, several days ago, attacked Jehnson and put him to flight, but the latter, retreating a few miles, rallied and fortified himself. Soon Beauregard sent him a reinforcement of several thousand men from Manassas, and then the whole country auxiously expected a great buttlo, the opposing forces be ing considered very nearly equal. The months of our secessionists were daily fillled with reports said to have come by the way of Nashville and Memphis that Johnson had cut Patterson to pieces, killing thousands of his men and taking all the rest, himself included, prisoners. They wouldn't admit even the possibility that there might be a mistake in the matter. But at last authentic news came, and we all know what it was. Johnson fled from before Patterson all the way to Winchester upon no better pretext than that there was danger, if he should fight, that women and children might be hurt.

And look at the occurrences further West is Virginia. The Confederate fortifications a Rich Mountain were considered very strong, but they were carried by the United States troops, and the camp, the artillery, the baggago wagons, the tents, and hundreds of pris oners fell into their hands. But the beadquarters of the Confederate troops in that section of Virginia were at Laurel IIill. Five thousand of the best of the Southern chivalry were stationed there, and weeks had been devoted to the construction of fortifications. The whole mountain was covered with entrenchments an hreast works. The opinion was that it could hold was abandoned, the whole army fleeing without firing a gun. And our renders have seen the story of the hot pursuit, the final turning at bay, the triumph of the United States war, and the taking of afore prisoners than

It would be impossible to overlock the fact that recent intelligence from Rame indicates the probable immisence of an event which must create a new crisis in the destiny of Italy's fiture capital. We have received an account, in which we have every reason to rely, describing the present state of the Pope's health in such terms as to leave little doubt that the Papal Chair will before long the recent. be vacant. News received in the ordinary way from Romo is scarcely to be considered worthy of implicit credence under existing circumstances.

It does not seem possible that any qualities in the character of Pio Nine's successor could so change the position of affairs as to recoccile Rome to a new lesse of Papal sovoreignty. But a rational and strong minded Pope night very easily effect a compromise which would at least restore to the Papacy its seat, in the centre of body for fister than Prof. Morse can despatch hie lighting.

eign Poivere will in some way or other come lour assistance, are not only undignified and impolitic, but, we believe, are without foundation in fact, and calculated to defeat the very object of the parties who give uttorance to them. The pulicy of the European States towards These States will he indicated and controlled by the government of Groat Britain. The present Ministry of that nation has neither the courage nor the inclination to apply to the Confederate States the rules which it has uniformly ceded in regard to other nations and peoples. Lord John Russell, the Foreign Secrotary, is notoricusly under the influence of the Excler Hall faction, and his associations in London are with the class of peop is who derive their ideas of American affaire from the swarms of Northerners who flood the European capitals, and do not hesitate to employ influencee and resort to meane for creating a sentiment in their favor which the class conse of exultation or expectation, onght rather to satisfy us of their unfriendliness. Even the meager recognition of our rights as a belligerent State, carrying with it no further admission than nor right to light under the laws of war, gave and the state of the product of the in salisfy is of their unfriendliness. Even the meager recognition of our rights as a belligerent Stale, carrying with it no further admission than in our right to light under the laws of war, gave great dissalisfaction to many of the people, and was made the occasion of fioren remonstrance and denunciation on the part of the Yankee politiciane and people. That Lord John Russell should deem it necessary in vindicate such a course by formal argument shows his own sensitiveness to any imputation of a friendly or a liberal policy lowards our government. The orders of council changing the uniform policy of the government in reference to carrying prizes into British portate in indefinite posiponement of Mr. Gregory's motion to recognize the Confederate States—the lame submission to and sitont acquiescence in the bullying manifestoes of Seward, all lend to the same conclusion, that Great Britain and France will reductantly recognize our independence and analomality only when we can establish and secure them beyond all impeachment and assault. The idea that the dependence of these nations upon the products of the Sonth will induce them to disregard and break up the blockade is one to which far too much importance and weight have been assigned by our people. Besides the incompanibility of such an idea with the true spirit of independence and manly self-reliance, it is quile obvious that the politicians and even the commercial clusses of Enteque are looking to other means byious that the politicians and even the commer-ial classes of Enrope are looking to other means of obtaining our products which they regard less langerous and costly than that of a war with the

the North growing out of any interference with the blockado would be quite as disastrous and damaging to the people of Great Britain as the interruption of commerce with the South. The British capitalists hold some four hundred millions of the bunds and et.cks of the Northern States and corporations, the forfeiture of which by a war, would equal the less of two cotton crops. How to avoid this great risk and loss is a very serious consideration with the Government of Great Britain. The neutrality which Russell and other British politicians In line, let us discard all diplomatic arts, all calor, power, and fortitude for the mainlenance CHARLES CARDEW, 13 NASSAU STREET, N. Y., FEEDING HOUSES.—The London Omnibus Co. have lately made a report on feeding hore which discloses some interesting information, see, the facte etated are of great value at the thousand horses; three thousand of this number had their feed bruised cals and cut hay and elraw, and the other three thousand got whole cals and hay. The allowance accorded to the first was, The hrui ed oals, cut hay, and cut straw amount-ed to twenty-six pounds; and the unbruised eals, &c., to thirty-two pounds. The adper day for the company's eix thousand horses. It which this experiment has supplied us. To the farmer who expends a large sum in the support of hurse power, there are two points this axperiment clearly establishes, which, in practice, must be prointable: first, the saving of food to the amount of eix pounds per day; and, second, no loss of borse-power arising from this saving.

Picking Up u Pin.—A young man once went with letters of recommendation to a large banking establishment. He called on the gentleman who was ut the head of it, full of hope and confidence that bo should obtain employment. The gentleman heard what he had to say, looked over his lettors hastily, and then handed them had, to say. The young man fell his heart of make with him. He was ready to hurst into tears. But there was no help for it, so he made his bow and rotted, a say has a passing in front of the building, there was a pill ving on the pavement. In an inotant the thought occurred to him that the young man who had such habits of exercinlessa as to step in such a moment of disapportant and nick up a pin would make a 180pointment and pick up a pin would make a use-ful husiness man. He sent inunctiately and called him back. He gave him an hunble citu-ption in his establishment. From that he rose by legrees, till he became the principal partner in IF YOUR HAIR IS HARSH.

Method of Perfuming Rooms.—Mr. Rimmel. the great English perfumer, has invented a perfume evaporizer, intended to be used as a sanitary agent as well as for the diffusion of merely pleasant odore through apartments, hospitals, halls, and theatres. It consists of a vessel heated by a small lamp below it, and acts by the evaporization of steam impregnated with the odors of flowers, aromatic vinegar, and other acids and sanitary egencies, such as chlorine and ammonia.
